TOUJIN BAKA (CHINESE GRAVE), in 1852, 400 laborers being shipped to California from China rebelled against the cruel treatment they received from the British. The ship however became shipwrecked off the coast of Ishigaki and 380 Chinese unboarded. Many of them were killed by gunfire from the British pursuers, by illness or committed suicide. Ishigaki islanders protected and provided shelter for them and furnished them with food. In 1971 a Toujin (Chinese) grave was made in the memory of the 128 people who perished in this foreign land.
MINEYA, Yaeyama Minsaori, its origins are said to have come from India. It is also said that the term for cotton girdle, "Mensa" transformed to become "Minsa". The Minsa was a special gift presented by young women to men as a sign of the acceptance of love. The combination of 5 (itsu) and 4 (yo) checker patterns characterize this fabric, the women's confession of love: "Love me forever" (ikuyo...itsuyo).
